Happy Mother's Day

Dear God:

Please bless the Mom today who holds upon her knee the child who'll lead all folks to pray, the minister-to-be.

Bless her who's bandaging the thumb of him whose tears are thick, of him who in the days to come, will heal his fellow sick.

Bless her who carries him about while shopping shelf by shelf. Someday the squirming little sprout will own a store himself.

Bless her who hears her own recite his homework or his speech, who knows that he must get it right because someday he'll teach.

Bless her whose interest proves for him the catalyst he needs to follow forth with all his vim great scientific leads.

Bless her who cheers when he's at bat – the sandlot's pride and joy – cause time will make him more than that; he'll be a big-league boy.

God, bless their efforts day by day. Assist in all they do, for this old world in every way depends on them and You.

This and That

Well, today begins our spring Gospel Meeting – Revival. Jack Hall is here from Richmond and we embark upon that for which we have eagerly anticipated. Which got me to thinking....just what is a revival? Merriam Webster defines it as “a period of renewed religious interest.” What does this mean to us as individuals? Glad you asked. I have thought of ten opportunities it presents each of us. So here we go:

1. We have an opportunity to listen to a new preacher. Well technically Jack isn’t new to us. But he just might be to some who attend.
2. There is the likelihood that we will be edified. The word edified means built up. Not physically of course, but spiritually.
3. We may learn duties and promises. God has things for us to do. He also has things for us to receive.
4. We have the opportunity to bring a friend. The flier on our car is a conversation starter.
5. Renew old acquaintances. Some of our friends, brothers and sisters from other areas and congregations will be sure to attend.
6. Make new friends. It just may be that a friend you haven’t met yet will come to the meeting.
7. Sit in a new seat. Unless you are here really early someone just may get your seat. This allows you to participate from another location in the worship area.
8. Reach the lost. You may know someone who needs to obey the gospel. This is a great opportunity to do that.
9. Teach others devotion to God. By your attendance at each service you are setting an example for others.
10. Worship God through Jesus Christ our Lord. What a grand thought that people from many congregations gather to worship God with us!

Lets turn off the TV, lay down the IPODs, fold up the PAPER, grab our FRIENDS, BIBLES, and CHILDREN and come to the MEETIN’. You will be glad you did. Think about it. Daniel Newell
