This and That

What does the word “home” mean to you? In his book The Ideal Home, I. A. Douthitt put the question to many. The answers he received were varied. A sampling:

- “Home is where a world of strife is shut out and a world of love shut in”
- “Home is where the great is small and the small is great”
- “Home is where faults are hidden and virtues are exalted”
- “Home is where our stomachs get three meals a day and our hearts get a thousand”
- “Home is where we complain the most and have the greatest blessings”
- “Home is the father’s kingdom, the mother’s world, and the child’s paradise”

In Genesis 2:18, God said, “It is not good that the man should be alone; I will make him an help meet for him”, and thus the human family and home was born. God intended for the man and the woman to unite in the common interest and needs of each other. The home built upon God’s word does this, and a home otherwise built does not. Children are a product of our homes. In your home, what values do children learn as they observe your actions day to day? Do they learn respect for each other and God’s word? What does home mean to them? Daniel Newell
